The Origin of the Piasa Bluffs Assembly, Now Called the New Piasa Chautauqua Association, on the Mississippi, in Jersey County, Illinois

by F. M. Van Treese

This article was written from a speech delivered by the Rev. F. M. Van Treese at an early meeting of the L.C.I.A. at Chautauqua. Rev. Van Treese was the last survivor of the committee who selected the ground and organized the Piasa Bluffs Assembly.

Sometime during the summer of 1885 two Committees were appointed, one from the Southern Illinois Sunday School Conference and the other from the St. Louis Ministerial Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with instructions and authorization to find a suitable and convenient location and to organize and secure a charter for a Western Chautauqua Assembly to be modeled after the plan of the Mother Chautauqua at Chautauqua Lake in New York.

These Committees were composed of prominent ministers and laymen of the St. Louis and Southern Illinois Conferences of the Methodist Church: from St. Louis, the Rev. Benj. St. James Fry, D.D., Editor of the Central Christian Advocate, J. A. Field and Fletcher M. Doan. From the Illinois Conference, J. W. Phillips, Presiding Elder of the Alton District, R. H. Manier of Edwardsville, J. A. Scarrett of Alton, and F. M. Van Treese of Jerseyville, George W. Brown of Vandalia, Theo. Harrison of Belleville and Morris R. Locke of Jerseyville.

About the first of July, 1885, these two Committees met at Alton to discuss the situation, and with them were Mrs. J. A. Scarrett and her sister, Mrs. J. W. Caldwell. They chartered the steamer "Alton" and proceeded up the Mississippi River, landing eventually at the upper bluff of the present Chautauqua Grounds. They proceeded up the Valley in search of the Piasa Spring that they had heard about. In passing they saw a rude log cabin and a field of corn on the site where later the Inn was built.

The already famous Piasa Spring was the center of attraction for the committee. If it had not been for that great spring, with its enormous flow of sparkling, fresh water, the grounds would never have been selected. The spring was found by the committee to be in its natural condition, just as the Red Man had left it a hundred years before. No doubt that in an earlier day, the Indians had camped in the Valley and obtained their water from the Piasa Spring. Many Indian arrows, spear heads and other relics have been found in the valley.

After landing, and locating the spring, the committee proceeded up the ravine through a tangled mass of vines and thick underbrush to explore the grounds. There was evidence that a house had once stood where the Store is now located and a rude stable where the Auditorium is now standing. Both of these buildings had disappeared; the main part of the grounds where the cottages now stand was an old abandoned corn field, but now grown up with briars and small bushes, forming a veritable nest for wasps, yellow jackets, hornets and rattlesnakes.

While the men were making the survey of the grounds, at the noon hour, the ladies of the party spread a cloth in front of the Piasa Spring and a lunch was served. After the lunch, a hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" was sung, prayer was offered and some speeches made. It was agreed that the grounds would be adapted for the Western Chautauqua.

The next thing to do was to purchase and to secure control of the grounds, which was part of a tract of 410 acres belonging to a Mrs. McCairn; this tract gave control of the valley between the Bluffs on the River front. It was more land than was needed for the purpose but the lady refused to sell a part of the acreage, and after some dickering the land in its entirity was purchased the next year.

It was decided to hold a camp meeting in order to advertise the enterprise and the Grounds Committee, and others, such as Tents, Program and Publicity were appointed. The Camp Meeting was held in what was then called "Babbs Hollow", near the Spring, and was largely attended by persons from St. Louis and nearby Illinois towns; many of them lived for the duration of the meeting in tents.

Rev. L. E. Cole, pastor of the Methodist Church of Elsah, Illinois, was Chairman of the preparations for the meeting, and he set aside a day for the people of Jersey County to meet and prepare the grounds for the meeting. The noon hour was set aside for the religious service, and the writer was invited to preach on the occasion. For this first sermon on the Chautauqua Grounds, he took as his text, Exodus 14:15, "Speak unto the People, That They Go Forward."

The first public announcement of the Assembly was made by Morris R. Locke of Jerseyville, Chairman of the Publicity Committee. It was in a circular issued on July 13, 1885, and it announced the first Camp Meeting in the Valley to begin, Tuesday, August 25, 1885, and to last one week. In that circular he described the Piasa Bluffs Assembly Grounds as follows: "They are on the banks of the Mississippi River in Jersey County, 37 miles above St. Louis, 12 miles above Alton, 12 miles from Jerseyville, 57 miles from Jacksonville and 84 miles from Springfield. The object of the Assembly is to maintain a summer resort for literary, scientific and religious instruction and culture similar to the Great Chautauqua Lake Assembly in New York State. It rivals the locality of any similar Association in the country. The scenery is grand, the Bluffs overlook the valleys of three rivers, the mighty Mississippi, the Missouri and the Illinois. The Assembly grounds are immediately on the Bluffs of the Mississippi, where the Missouri and the Illinois Rivers can be plainly seen in the distance coursing their way through the rich and fertile valleys of Missouri and Illinois".

THE PICTURE ROCKS

To add to the charm of this location was the significant name given in the early days to the chain of magnificent stone bluffs from Alton to Grafton, "The Piasa Bluffs", taken from the Indian legends and traditions of the Piasa Bird. This dragon was pictured on the rocks of the bluffs and was reported as having been visible as late as 1849. It was described as a composite monster with the face of a man, horns of a deer, the wings of a bird, the claws of a lion, and the tail of a serpent. The tradition was that this dragon was the enemy of the Indians and destroyed many of the Illini Indians until it was destroyed by a young Chief of the tribe.

The Piasa Bluffs Assembly was incorporated in July, 1885 under the laws of Illinois. The Incorporators were B. S. J. Fry, J. A. Field, Fletcher M. Doan, R. H. Manier, George W. Brown, Theo. Harrison and M. R. Locke.

The writer was elected Corresponding Secretary of the Corporation and visited numerous churches and schoolhouses to secure the money to purchase the land. At the close of the second camp meeting, J. A. Scarrett was elected Superintendent of the Grounds. During his management, the grounds were platted, trees planted, streets and avenues laid out, and the Auditorium and many cottages built. It was very successful from the start.

In 1909 the New Piasa Chautauqua Association was formed to take over the grounds and property of the Piasa Bluffs Assembly.

PIASA SPRING

This lovely spring in its rustic setting was one of the deciding factors in the selection of the grounds by the original committee. Evidence was found to support the fact that the spring had been used by the Indians. Life in the valley has been traced to about 1850. The flow of the spring, about 85,000 gallons per day, has not diminished to this day. Tests of the water are made frequently. The Chautauqua Association, in an effort to maintain the highest sanitary condition of the spring, has tapped the source of the spring at a point 150 feet within the bluff. It is then pumped to the reservoir on the hilltop.

Chautauqua Yacht Club

The vast expanse of Alton Lake offers Chautauqua motor boat owners and sailing enthusiasts all the inspiration necessary for a most wonderful vacation during the entire season.

The landing docks and river activities are under the supervision of the Chautauqua Yacht Club, who plan to hold the annual regatta the latter part of August, and visiting boat owners will be notified of particulars later.
